MR. VOERMANS OF STRATHMORE FATALITY STRICKEN ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

Leaving St. Mary's cathedral where he said prayers before going to visit his sick wife in the Holy Cross hospital, Joseph P. Voermans, collapsed on the sidewalk in front of the cathedral and was dead before he was admitted to hospital Wednesday at 3 p.m.

Father P. A. Tessier, priest in the cathedral, was the first to reach Mr. Voermans' side after he was stricken of a heart attack and accompanied the dying man to the hospital in Starrs' ambulance.

Mrs. Voermans has been in hospital for several weeks and was about ready to be discharged.

A married son, Joseph, Strathmore, survives.

Funeral services will be held Saturday, June 13 at 10 a.m. from Sacred Heart Church, Strathmore.

Interment will take place in the Strathmore cemetery.

Mr. and Mrs. Voermans had moved into Strathmore from their farm about two years ago intending to spend the sunset of their life in comparative ease. This sudden death comes to thwart those plans.

The sympathy of the community is extended the family.

MR. AND MRS. LAWSON BEREAVED

Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Lawson of Lyalta received Saturday last the sad word of the very sudden death of their daughter, Mrs. Thos. McNamara of Puyallup, Wash. Mrs. McNamara is survived by her husband and two children, her parents and sister and two brothers. Mrs. Lawson left Saturday for Puyallup, and a son, Mr. K. Lawson of St. Catherine's, Ont., went to be present at the funeral.

The sincere sympathy of many friends is extended the bereaved families.

LEGION NOTES

Army Week was the main topic of discussion at the last Legion meeting. It was felt that members should do all they could to put the event over. Plans are being made to have a smoker that week and have some army men from Calgary attend and give a talk on the new army. All service and ex-service men are requested to get behind the movement and make it a success.

Letters of thanks were read from the Sorosis Society and Cpl. T. J. Kildea. Several questions on conscription and exemptions from same were left over until the Dominion Convention report was received. It was stated that these had been well looked into.

The gas and rubber will put a crimp on the annual trip to St. George's Island, but it is planned to hold the picnic as usual nearer home this year.

HEAVY RAIN GENERAL

The rain that has been falling for the past 24 hours and still continuing is indeed just what the country needed. The previous light showers have merely settled the surface dust, but the rain falling gently is soaking into the ground and is bringing a genuine feeling of relief to everyone. To the farmer it is making unnecessary the contemplated task of irrigating. In the last twenty-four hours .77 inch of rain has fallen.

THE OUT-SIDE

Fifty thousand hairdressers are the latest recruits to Britain's war drive. Each of them has received detailed instructions about the "Liberty Cut," the new haircut for women. The "Liberty Cut" saves hairpins and clips, not to mention time. When done by machine it uses less electricity, and it saves the wearer's money by reducing the number of visits which she normally pays to her hairdresser. Incidentally, it wards off the danger of typhus from lice. The new haircut induces a natural wave. The hair is cut completely short around the crown and tapered to three or four inches all round the head. Some styles can go to six inches, and, if the nape of the neck is untidy, it can be shingled. No cutting is required at the neck if the hair grows in an upward movement. The crown is flat or slightly waved, with curls round the sides and the back. These are dressed in an upward direction, leaving the hair line exposed.

What They Say—

Dr. F. Cyril James, principal of McGill University, in a baccalaureate address—"Canada, and the United Nations which fight beside us, are engaged in a war against 'the rulers of the darkness of this world' which is more terrible and more wide-spread than any previous struggle that has engaged the energies of mankind. The challenge that faces us is clear. We know that, in order to preserve the finest things of our western civilization, we must defeat decisively the forces that are arrayed against us."

"And when that task is finished, we shall not be able to rest upon our oars, because it becomes increasingly apparent that war itself must be eliminated if our civilization is to be preserved."

● More than 200 students of the faculties of medicine and dentistry are expected to register for classes at the University of Alberta, it was announced by A. E. Ottewill, university registrar. Students will be taking accelerated courses so that early graduations will permit of their serving as doctors with the armed forces. Graduation will take place early next year for the final year students.

● A new automatic weapon which Britain is producing in huge quantities is getting each week 30,000 gun-sights and 20,000 other parts from a factory in South London which in peace time sent millions of Coronation and Jubilee medals all over the Dominions.

Surplus Wheat A Blessing—

The British look upon the surplus wheat stocks as a blessing. The retiring president of the Liverpool Corn Trade Association, at the annual meeting of that organization, said that prior to 1938 excessive stocks of wheat appeared as a nightmare, but as things have turned out these stocks have proved to be a blessing. It is nothing less than a miracle, he said, that in the countries most closely bound to Britain as allies and as friends there have been large supplies of wheat always available for shipment to Britain, and so the risk of starvation has been avoided. Perhaps these stocks may yet prove a major factor in winning this war. The retiring president said.

PORTUGUESE BULLFIGHT BRILLIANT PAGEANT

This is the 17th in the series of stories about a trip to wartime Britain and return, by way of Portugal. They are written for the weekly newspapers of Canada by Hugh Templin, editor of the Fergus News-Record.

I have already written something of Lisbon, the capital of Portugal. This week, I add some more. Frankly, what I write is colored by my point of view. Perhaps I do Lisbon an injustice.

An excellent guide book, published by the Government of Portugal and presented to me with the compliments of the Minister of Propaganda (for they call a spade a spade in Portugal), says—

"Lisbon is enchanting. It is a city at once ancient and modern with wide avenues bordered by magnificent houses and crowded with swift motor cars. There are streets of steep steps in which houses of many colored fronts jostle one another confusedly, while between them passes a motley crowd in typical costumes—fishwives, bare-legged but wearing golden necklaces, women carrying jars of water on their heads in classic pose."

True enough, no doubt, but my diary tells a different story. Up to that time, it had been full and complete, as readers may have guessed. But for the week in Portugal, it is brief. It says—

"Saturday, October 10th, to Friday, October 16th.—The terrible week in Lisbon. Disliked it from the start. Saw bullfight on Sunday, October 11th. Sick on Tuesday and stayed that way till Excmo. sailed on Friday—and for four days more."

And that, except for two pages of notes on the bullfight, is all. But I need no notes to bring back memories of Lisbon. They keep coming back, even in my sleep, and nearly always as nightmares.

All in the Point of View—

Yet it is all in the point of view, apparently. To thousands of people from Nazi-dominated Europe, Lisbon in those months and for some fifteen months before, was the symbol of liberty and comparative safety. Some of them gave up everything they had except their lives, to reach the city. Uncounted hundreds probably lost their lives trying to reach it. Lisbon was the only point of contact with the free world—with the United States and, to some extent with, Great Britain. During the voyage across the Atlantic to New York, I was to hear at first hand the stories of some of these refugees. Not till then did I learn what Nazi domination really means. For those poor people, Lisbon was literally the doorway out of Hell.

I didn't look on Lisbon in that way. To me, it was but a port of call on the way to the home I was anxious to see as soon as possible. When I learned I would have to wait ten days for a plane across the Atlantic, it was a shock. With the seven other Canadian editors, I began to haunt the offices of Pan American Airways, and later, those of American Export Lines. I stood in line with other refugees and became one of them. Would I get out of Portugal before the Germans arrived? I wondered. Would the United States be forced into the war while I stayed on in Lisbon waiting for the Clippers that were so slow coming?

I had just come by plane from Britain. The trip had its dangers, but they were of the exhilarating kind. A few nights before, I had come unscathed through a bomb raid and had marvelled at the way free people took those things. There had always been some danger in those days and nights in England but the people were of my own kind, and it had seemed a good place to be.

In Portugal, the very air was different. I knew not a word of the language and little of the customs. An unusual number of policemen were to be seen everywhere. One could buy lottery tickets on the streets, but could be arrested for using a cigarette lighter.

Portugal has a benevolent dictator, a Professor Salazar. He has done much good, they say. But there must be times when he quails at the magnitude of the job ahead of him. The people are desperately poor; many of them have deadly sicknesses. I had been warned not to drink the water in Lisbon or even clean my teeth with it. Distilled water was sold in five-litre bottles for the purpose. Nobody warned me against all raw fruits and vegetables. It may have been a lettuce salad, or perhaps a bunch of handsome grapes that finally sent me to bed, quite ill.

But it may have been partly the fear that comes from being watched day after day by enemy eyes. The new Hotel Victoria swarmed with Germans, one of them said to be the head of the local Gestapo. I had to turn over my passport on arrival to the International Police. I never did find out who constitute that body, but I knew the passport said I was traveling "on official government business". The Germans knew that. Only once in the whole week in Lisbon did I feel really at ease, and that was the night the people in the British Embassy gave us a dinner at the British Club. It was a grand old building and inside its thick walls one could talk freely.

The Bullfight a Bright Spot—

To Canadian readers, it must seem strange when I say that the bullfight I saw in Lisbon provided some recreation.

Truly, I never expected to be seen at a bullfight, and on a Sunday afternoon, of all times. It took some time for the idea to sink in. B. K. Sandwell and I walked up the Avenida da Liberdade on a Saturday afternoon, dodging the hawkers who tried to press lottery tickets on us, and looking at the sights. The huge, colored posters advertising the bullfight fascinated us. They bore some resemblance to fall fair posters back home, but they had pictures in brilliant colors, of toreadors and raging bulls.

Slowly, we translated the posters—or thought we did. The top line was clear enough "8 Bravos Torros." "8 Brave Bulls." And then the time and the place and the price, which was only 15 escudos or less than 75 cents for box seats. But the line that really fascinated us was down near the bottom, "6 Torros Disembollos." We shuddered over it. "Good goah, Templin," said Mr Sandwell. "It must be a bloody spectacle if they are going to disembowel six bulls."

Back in the hotel, others of our party had other details. They said the bulls weren't killed. It was all just pretend. But it was the national sport something like hockey. We shouldn't miss it. Besides a young Portuguese Army officer, who spoke excellent English, would accompany us to explain the fine points. One of the crowd had already arranged for two boxes for the party.

Portuguese Bullfight

Brilliant Pageant

Lisbon's bull-ring has a magnificent setting. The taxicab turned out of the broad Avenida into a beautiful park. In the centre rose the great, circular bull-ring, a tall structure in fancy Moorish architecture. People were getting out of cars all around it while hundreds of others came off the street cars or on foot.

The Portuguese Lieutenant found the proper door and we began to climb up and up on concrete stairs.

It reminded me of the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. It was another typical "hockey crowd," mostly young people, a few families with the children accompanying the parents. They were a happy, excited lot.

The box seats were up at the top, on the shady side. Lisboa is a hot place. The temperature in the daytime ran about 85 degrees. Seats in the sun cost about half the price of those in the shade. We sat on chairs in a large, uncovered box. Nearby, various prominent families occupied their own boxes. The family coats-of-arms showed on bright cloths hung over the railings in front.

Down below were the cheap seats, around a perfectly circular ring with a sandy floor. Over on the sunny side, a band played unknown airs. The place seated about 15,000 and was fairly well filled, though there was a big counter attraction that day in a smaller city nearby, with nearly twice as many bulls.

On the Side of the Bulls

The Portuguese bullfight, as it turned out, is not a bloody spectacle, but rather a pageant. Horses and costumes are beautiful and even the bulls look impressive as they came on at first, snorting and occasionally pawing the sand. But no blood is spilled, no animals are killed and no person gets hurt, though that was merely because the bulls failed to follow up their advantages when they came. It was less cruel than a rodeo, much less exciting than a junior hockey match, less dangerous, apparently, than senior rugby football.

The costumes were beautiful, all covered with gold braid on bright colors. There were toradors, who fight on foot, using a capa or cape to attract the attention of the bulls. Chief of these is the matador, the man who kills the bull (in Spain) or uses a wooden sword and pretends to kill the animal, in Portugal. The mounted bullfighters are cavaliers. Sometimes there are other men who wrestle with the bulls and throw them. These are forcados.

A bugle blows and the excitement begins. There is a sort of grand parade—two cavaliers on splendid Arab horses and several groups of toradors in brilliant yellow and deep plum colored suits with gold braid.

The trumpets blew again. The ring was cleared. A gate at the left opened and a black bull with brass balls on his horns came rushing in. Another gate across the ring opened and a horseman entered, while toradors jumped over the fence and into the circle.

After his first rush, the bull had lost his enthusiasm. The toradors waved their red capes at him and he charged them, while they neatly sidestepped, or turned over their capes to show the yellow side, whereupon the bull lost interest. But he didn't like the horse and charged for it. The cavaleiro held what looked two tiny spears with ribbons on the ends. As the bull charged, he turned his horse, leaned towards the bull and neatly planted the barbed ends of these banderillas in the fatty part of the neck. The spears broke off near the points, leaving ribbons hanging on the bull's neck. The bull looked angry rather than hurt, but he did it press the fight until the men with the capes stirred him up again. Six darts, in all, were placed in his neck before the cavaleiro took a wooden sword, and all alone in the ring now, made several attacks on the bull before dealing what might have been a death blow with a real sword. The crowd, understanding the fine points, boomed cheerfully when he missed and cheered when he succeeded. Then the trumpet blew again as the referee, sitting on a pedestal, signalled that the fight was over.

The horseman rode away, bowing and smiling. The bull looked around and saw no one. The gates opened, and a herd of six skinny, trained steers, each with a huge cowbell on its neck, came into the ring and encircled the bull and he trotted off with them, the herd driven by two little boys in bright costumes.

There was one more fight on horseback and six on foot. They tended to grow monotonous. The sympathy of the Canadians was all with the bulls which didn't want to fight. Once a bull had his chance. A torador slipped and fell on the sand. The bull immediately stood aside until he got up. But the Portuguese don't ask the bulls to fight more than once. They retire after one public appearance. Perhaps that's just as well. The bull, back in the pasture field, might get to thinking, "Now, if I had only run at the man instead of that red rag." And if any bulls get ideas like that, it might end bullfighting.

There remained but one mystery. How about those "torros desembollos"? We asked the young Lieutenant and he laughed heartily. "Why," he said, "We Portuguese don't disembowel our bulls. It means, how you say it? Oh yes, 'six disabled bulls'."

You see, the ones that fight the horses have brass balls on their horns so they cannot tear the horses' flanks; the ones that fight the men have no balls on their horns."

So that was that!

F. W. GERSHAW WRITES FROM OTTAWA

In view of the present shortage of gasoline, it is timely to review what has been done by experimenting with the use of farm products in making alcohol for motor fuel. Since the last war this study has continued in order to find an additional outlet for agricultural products and to provide a home produced fuel to replace imported gasoline.

Alcohol when added to gasoline to the extent of 10 to 25 percent is effective in raising the Anti-Knock properties. Tetra-ethyl lead is now imported for this purpose at a cost of two million dollars.

Alcohol cannot be produced as cheaply as gasoline as the cost of alcohol at the distillery would be from 35 to 45 cents while gasoline has been produced at the refinery much cheaper.

Power alcohol can be produced from corn, coal, barley, wheat, potatoes and sugar beets. If wheat is available at 58 cents per bushel, alcohol can be produced from it at 40 cents per gallon. One bushel of wheat will produce two gallons of alcohol. Potatoes used to produce alcohol at 40 cents per gallon would need to be purchased at 16.2 cents per bushel.

An attractive material for producing alcohol is the Sugar Beet. Unlike wheat the price does not fluctuate much. A ton of sugar beets will produce 20 gallons of alcohol. Alcohol can be produced valued at 45 cents a gallon from sugar beets at $5.80 per ton.

Canada in 1939 used 800 million gallons of gasoline. If 10 percent of this was replaced by alcohol 80 millions gallons would be required. A plant to produce 10,000 gallons daily would cost about $700,000.

In locating a plant, a place where the residual feed could be used should be chosen. This feed is worth about $20 per ton.

The blending of the alcohol and gasoline could be done wherever the greatest fuel consumption was found to be.

At ordinary times the sale of motor alcohol has not been very successful except where it has been made compulsory by law but, under the present emergency conditions, the picture is changed. Also Alcohol is useful in the making of war material and the problem is one that should receive serious consideration.

The figures used here are copied from a pamphlet by C. Y. Hopkins, Department of Chemistry, Ottawa.

The Royal Flying Corps trained pilots and observers at Camp Borden during the First Great War.

THE WORLD WE MUST BUILD

The following letter printed in The Budget is a clear, concise and forceful word picture of the world, the men in the fighting forces desire, and to which they hope to return.

They cannot do it alone, and it is up to us to help bring about conditions that will equal and be worthy of the sacrifice they are now making.

It is not an easy task—neither is winning the victory. It can be done, and a better world will result.

—Dad, Give Us Something to Come Back to!

Dear Dad,—
 I've read your letters with interest, and followed the newspapers with hope, yet nowhere do I see a sign of the spirit I hope to see this war bring out.

Dad, even you seem to overlook one factor. You ask for my ideas on what organizations might do.

I wish I spoke for every soldier now—I pray I speak for a few. Here's what you U. S. O., Y. M. C. A. and Y. M. H. A. and all the rest can do.

They can give me a living thing to fight for. They can mend Democracy behind the lines while we defend it from the fore. They can give me and every thinking man with a gun, whose only excuse for murder is the defense of his home and his government, a real government to defend. And they can give us something to come back to besides a melange of poverty and plenty with the accent on the former.

I don't want free cigarettes or a carte blanche to heretic suicide. I want a real democracy to return to, not an ideal behind which hides 40 million underprivileged citizens, a host of crooked politicians and a mass of factions each striving to cut the other's throats.

Don't remind me of Valley Forge, Gettysburg, the Maine, the Alamo. Democracy lives on tomorrow, not yesterday.

Don't tell the sharecropper to forget his rickets, his debts, the bleak future, and be happy because one hundred years ago Old Ironsides won a battle in the Mediterranean.

Too many men have died for an ideal that never was. I don't want to join their ranks.

I haven't had a chance to think this all out and I've expressed it poorly, but you know what I mean.

Love, JIM.

AFTER THE WAR

PROSPERITY in Canada depends on prosperity on the farms.

Agriculture in Canada is and will continue to be one of the first-rank industries.

It is generally recognized that when the war is over there will be a large migration of men to Canada—many of whom will want to settle on farms. This is an opportune time to establish agriculture on a firm and forward looking basis.

Canadian farm homes could and should be made as attractive as city homes. This would tend greatly to lessen the flow of Canadian youth from the farm to the city.

No calling surpasses farming from the standpoint of health and vigor of body.

Most of Canada's "Great" come from farm homes.

MAY REVOLUTIONIZE CANADIAN FARMING

A MISSION to Canada to be undertaken shortly by a Scots professor of rural economy may have the most far-reaching consequences for the Dominion's agricultural industry after the war.

The professor is Dr. J. A. Scott Watson, son of a Scots tenant farmer who has just been appointed agricultural adviser to the high commissioner for the United Kingdom in Canada, Mr. Malcolm MacDonald, the first appointment of the kind ever made. His mission, as he told me in an interview, is to do what he can in North America to bring producers together so that no longer shall there be a food shortage and malnutrition in some countries while good food the farmer produces has to be destroyed in others.

"We have improved machinery. We have bred better cattle. We have brought new plants into existence and developed the food value of others. So that today we can abolish if we wish not only want and malnutrition, which is widespread, but provide for everyone.

"We can achieve what the Atlantic Charter calls for, but if we are to do so we must get world producers together and remove present divergences and misunderstandings."

OPENING UP THE NORTH COUNTRY

IN former years Horace Greeley's advice to "Go West, Young Man—Go West" was a "Houseword" that was acted on by many single young men and men with families, who possessed a pioneering and adventurous nature.

Today, we say—Go North, Young Folk, Go North. Immense wealth of natural resources await development in Canada's Northland mines. Rich mines of Alberta Tar Sands, Oil wells that rival Turner Valley's output, radium, gold, fish, furs, etc., etc.

With the opening up of the country through the new highway and the line of continuous airports reaching completion together with river transportation, access to these points will be made reasonably easy. Having a part in developing a new country that possesses such large possibilities, has an abiding interest that the more settled parts have outgrown. It was a look forward that prompted Premier Aberhart to try to include in the Province of Alberta some of this Northern New Land. Within the confines of 1,000 miles north of Edmonton, good homes will yet be established.

TO SAVE BATTERY

A good way to give your battery a lift is to depress the clutch pedal when you step on the starter. When you do this the battery isn't given the extra job of turning the transmission gears.

Uncle—So you lads have started a cycling club. What made them elect you captain?

Young Harry—Well, uncle, as a matter of fact, I'm the only one who has a bicycle at present.

TO THE BOYS OF THE VETERAN GUARDS

We are the boys of the Veteran Guards,

The boys who have re-volunteered To run or to stand for this old home land

'Gainst a foe that is world-wide feared.

We are all Ex-Vets of the last war's sweats,

Where we fought against terrible odds In the years long ago, 'gainst the same old foe,

Now turned to his heathenish gods.

His madness now, in this world war row,

Makes his reason run all brut-wild, For without one cause, he's made cruel laws

To kill helpless woman or child.

So how could we wait, with this foe at our gate,

A-threat'ning so terribly hard,

So we signed up again, a new link in the chain

This enemy's march to retard.

Just now we are found on our old home ground,

Where we're guarding our own front yards;

While our sons over there are doing their share

With us dads in the Veteran Guards.

When this old war's done, and the victory's won,

And you're handing out faithful rewards,

Please do not forget, one single Ex-Vet,

Who served in the Veteran Guards.

For we're no discards, we're the Veteran Guards,

The boys who have re-volunteered To run or to stand, for this dear home land,

'Gainst the foe that is world-wide feared.

—RALPH GORDON.

"BIRDS WITHOUT WINGS"

The Airframe and Aero Engine
Mechanic

The Aero Engine Mechanic may be a "Bird Without Wings" but it is a certainty that the Birds With Wings would be helpless to fly without his particular skill and knowledge.

The A. E. M., as he is known, is responsible for the upkeep of the aircraft engine and all its components. Every pilot is aware of the trust and confidence he must place in his mechanic to be successful in his exploits. That the A. E. M. must have an extensive knowledge to carry out his duties successfully, is a known fact. But further to that, the rapid advancement made in the field of Aero Engine design makes him a constant student of his work.

General H. H. Arnold has paid the following tribute to the mechanics: "Examine the rolls of the flying dead and you'll find as many mechanics as pilots. Yet their names are forgotten. Others get the adulation, the praise, the medals, the commendations. You can't name the mechanic whose work makes possible the prominent flights, although the pilot's names are household words. If I didn't have full confidence in my mechanic I'd be a foot soldier. If they weren't reliable it would be too dangerous to fly. So, I say to you little mechs: My helmet's off to you. You may be ragged little grease monkeys to some, but you're the guardian angel of this flying business. You too are air heroes!"

Northern Ireland has fewer than 24,000 unemployed men and women.

Wheat Stem Sawfly Again

Last January we drew the attention of our readers to a Dominion Government circular entitled "Control of Wheat Stem Sawfly." The Division of Entomology, Ottawa, has recently prepared a coloured map which shows the extent of sawfly infestation in the prairie provinces. The colours on the map are very bright, but the prospect rather gloomy. Sawfly is present over an area bounded by a line extending from the international boundary
approximately through Winnipeg,
Kamsack, Prince Albert, Edmonton, Calgary and Cardston. Obviously this leaves a comparatively small portion of our wheat growing area entirely free from infestation.

On the back of the sawfly map will be found a summary of the problem and brief descriptions of control measures. The following statement is made:

"Plans must be made immediately to start sawfly control on infested farms. No farmer who suffered loss in 1941 should continue farming without recognizing the problem and taking steps to reduce the loss caused by this insect."

In order to consult the sawfly map and information provided therewith, farmers have only to call on grain buyers in any of the line elevators associated with the work of the Agricultural Department of the North-West Line Elevators Association. Grain buyers also have copies of the excellent bulletin, written by Dr. C. W. Farstad, to which reference was made in our January article.

For further information, write to the Dominion Entomological Laboratory at Lethbridge, Saskatoon or Brandon; or to the Department of Agriculture, Edmonton, Regina or Winnipeg.

THE OTTAWA SPOTLIGHT

(Weekly Review of National Affairs)
By M. McDOUGALL

Air Attacks on Aleutian Islands

Ottawa—The recent attacks on Dutch Harbor in the Aleutian Islands off the Alaska mainland have brought the Aerial warfare a little closer to our coasts and just as in the case of the submarine's activities in the St. Lawrence have naturally created some apprehension while they have kicked a nother prop from the crumbling edifice of isolationism. Col. Ralston informed the house of commons that the raids on Dutch Harbor were not unexpected, and assured fellow members and the country that the western commands in Canada and the United States were cooperating to meet whatever threat may come from the Japanese activity to the Northwest. The Canadian chief of staff has been in the West inspecting defences and new dispositions of forces have been carried out.

Coupon Rationing Commences—

Coupon rationing will shortly begin in this country. The extent of the rationing will depend on conditions as they arise, but in the meantime a start will be made with sugar, to give experience both to individuals and the administration. There has of course been a system of rationing by ticket in force in the case of gasoline, but gasoline however widely used doesn't enter in such intimate fashion into the lives of the entire community. The same intimate association with the daily life of the people is true of tea and coffee, which will likely follow sugar on the rationed list. There is now of course an "honor" or voluntary type of rationing in operation on tea and coffee, and even in the short time that has elapsed since the order to reduce consumption of tea by one half and coffee by one quarter was issued, the response has been very encouraging. Donald Gordon, chairman of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has stated.

The work of the Wartime Prices Board has been coming in for some criticism by individual members in the house of commons. It has been stated that the disproportionately heavy burden has been borne by the primary producer through the introduction of the blanket price control, and that taking a basic period for the freezing of prices and wages has meant that inequities existing at that time have also been "frozen." The minister of finance, J. L. Halsey, in his defence of the price ceiling in the house has pointed out that during the first 26 months of the first great war cost of living rose 15 per cent and that in the same period of this war there was an exactly similar increase, but while in the following seven months of the first war there was a further increase of 13 per cent, in this war the increase has been less than 1 per cent. In this war too when we are spending 40 per cent of the national income on war, the pressure on prices is much greater than in the last war when only 10 per cent of the income was expended on the war.

Price Control—

Whatever squalls may rock the price structure at its moorings hereafter, up to the present it is securely anchored, and that means inflation has been held in check. But the troubles of the board are far from over. Pressure will continue as the amount of consumer goods progressively declines. The band of control will be drawn tighter as war necessities become more persistent in their demands. The enforcement branch of the prices board is becoming increasingly active as it sets out to prevent any "bootlegging" of gasoline and rubber. There is no indication that a "black bourse" is in existence but prevention is better than cure. There is no question, however, that the prices board has had from the beginning the support of the public. Business too has helped. There can be no doubt that the Canadian community—in particular the women who do the major part of the purchasing of consumer goods and services—have appreciated how vital are the aims of the prices board and have loyally cooperated. The harness of control may gall here and there but the novelty has worn off, and even if trace, strap or bit may be drawn tighter, the public realizes that the whole team will have to pull together to run the furrow to victory.

Air To Britain—

The discussion of the $2,000,000,000 war appropriation bill is drawing to its close. Recently minister of agriculture, J. G. Gardiner, has been describing to the house the efforts this country is making to supply Britain and the allies with food needed for the war effort. While on the 600 million pound bacon contract with the British ministry of food, Gardiner stated that in the first 25 weeks of the terms of the year's contract which began October 1st, 1941, about 52 per cent of the total amount of bacon required was either shipped or in storage ready for shipment. It was difficult to make a forecast but he hoped and believed the contract would be filled by its expiration.

When the discussions on this bill are over, the amendment to the national resources mobilization act which is expected to arouse considerable controversy will be before the house. The C. C. F. party is certain to introduce an amendment for the conscription of wealth.

There have been discussions in the department of labor on the questions arising out of the difference between wage rates being paid by the American government on the Alaska Highway construction and those current in industry in the Yukon. Mr. Black, member for the Yukon brought up the question in the commons. There was a difference of roughly 15 per cent, and this had brought difficulties to Yukon industries. Mr. Black suggested that the matter should be left in the hands of the Yukon commissioner to adjust with the American authorities in some way.

TO BRIDGE THE GAP

To bridge the gap in an attack the army needs pontoon bridges. One such bridge, which weighs 10 tons, requires enough rubber for 200 ordinary automobile tires. To bridge the gap between the present rubber shortage and the day when synthetic production will help to supply the needs of the armed forces scrap rubber is needed. Get in the scrap!

A recent Chilean law requires that 10 percent of all building construction costs be devoted to sculpture and decorative art.

VICTORS AND VANQUISHED

On top the men of a northern county regiment enjoy a scratch meal with an officer during a lull in the fighting. Contrast their smiling faces with those of the prisoners BELOW. Especially dejected here is the bearded Italian captive who is gazing dejectedly into the camera. Because of the men have burrowed into the ground for protection. For even the desert has cold winds at times.

CARSELAND

We are sorry to report that Mrs. W. Giles was taken to Calgary Hospital Tuesday. We hope for a speedy recovery.

Carceland and Mossleigh Ladies Aid Societies held a joint meeting at the home of Mrs. Clegg Wednesday. An interesting and amusing programme was enjoyed by about 30.

Mrs. A. McNeill and baby son have returned to Calgary after a short visit with her parents Mr. and Mrs. Stilson. Mr. McNeill is in training in the East.

Mr. Robt. Moore is spending a week's holiday with his parents Mr. and Mrs. Mead Moore.

Monday, June 8th marked the Diamond anniversary of the marriage of a much respected couple of our community. Mr. and Mrs. Philip Dick. Sixty years ago the marriage of Katherine Deines to Philip Dick was solemnized in the little village of Norka, Russia. Mr. and Mrs. Dick came out to Omaha, Neb. in 1890, moving to Wisconsin in 1900, then to Carceland in 1907, where they have since made their home. There are nine children, four sons and five daughters, twenty-six grandchildren and three great grand children. The family celebrated the event with a family dinner, the table being centred with a three tiered, diamond shaped wedding cake, the gift of Mrs. Leland Phillips. Two daughters, Elizabeth (Mrs. P. Mohr) of Englevalle, N. D. and Rose (Mrs. Lize of Yakima, Wash. were unable to be present. The happy couple were the recipients of many lovely congratulatory cards, messages and gifts, including a very nice radio, the gift of their many friends in the community. May life yet hold many years of happiness and health for this grand old couple.

Carceland ball team journeyed to Arrowwood for their annual Sports Day, June 8th. Carceland won both games, first defeating Milo 7-6, and second defeating Arrowwood 4-2. Good work boys.

Don't forget the "Father's Day" Supper to be held in the Church Wednesday, June 17th.

STRATHMORE HOTEL BUILDS FIRE ESCAPE

To provide against what might have very serious results in case of fire, the Strathmore Hotel, in keeping with Government regulations, have had a fire escape built from the top story, thus assuring a safe exit for any guests.

We hope no outbreak of fire will occur, making the exit a necessary escape but just a provision of locking the "stable door" before rather than after.
